entity that hired, supervised, or otherwise exercised authority over the mental health professional; and a person who negligently hired, supervised, or retained a licensed mental health professional to engage in the efforts.

The bill permits the injured individual, or the individual's personal representative or estate if the individual is deceased, to be awarded economic, noneconomic, and exemplary damages and sets forth the manner in which causation may be established to show a connection between the efforts the individual underwent and the harm the individual suffers.

The bill states what an expert witness may address in the expert's testimony regarding the efforts the individual underwent and the harm the individual suffered.

1 Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Colorado:

2 SECTION 1. Legislative declaration. (1) The general assembly
3 finds and declares that:

4 (a) The American Psychological Association, the American 5 Psychiatric Association, the American Academy of Pediatrics, the 6 American Medical Association, the American Counseling Association, 7 the American Academy of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry, the 8 American School Counselor Association, the National Association of 9 Social Workers, and other mental health and medical organizations in the 10 United States have determined that efforts to change an individual's 11 sexual orientation or gender identity are harmful and ineffective;

12 (b) In 2009, the American Psychological Association Task Force
13 on Appropriate Therapeutic Responses to Sexual Orientation conducted 14 a systematic review of peer-reviewed research and concluded that sexual 15 orientation change efforts are unlikely to be successful and involve risk 16 of harm, including depression, suicidality, and anxiety;

17 (c) In 2021, the American Psychological Association adopted a 18 resolution calling for the elimination of sexual orientation and gender

1 identity change efforts, concluding that sexual orientation and gender 2 identity change efforts are harmful and ineffective in changing a person's 3 sexual orientation or gender identity;

4 (d) The scientific and clinical consensus establishes that sexual 5 orientation or gender identity change efforts pose serious risks of harm to 6 patients, including depression, guilt, helplessness, hopelessness, shame,
7 social withdrawal, suicidality, substance abuse, stress, self-blame,
8 decreased self-esteem, feelings of anger and betrayal, loss of religious 9 faith, alienation from family, problems in sexual and emotional intimacy, 10 sexual dysfunction, high-risk sexual behaviors, feelings of being 11 dehumanized, and a sense of having wasted time and resources;

12 (e) The psychological harm caused by sexual orientation or gender 13 identity change efforts often do not manifest until years or decades after 14 the efforts occurred. Survivors frequently fail to recognize such treatment 15 as harmful and fail to connect their psychological injuries to the treatment
16 until much later in life or are deterred from coming forward by shame 17 instilled by the treatment itself.

18 (f) The dynamics of the therapeutic relationship, including the 19 trust placed on mental health professionals, the age and vulnerability of 20 patients, the authority exercised by professionals, and the shame and 21 internalized stigma resulting from such treatment, create barriers to timely 22 disclosure and recognition of harm similar to those recognized by this 23 state in the context of childhood sexual abuse;

24 (g) The existing statute of limitations for professional negligence
25 does not adequately account for the delayed recognition of psychological 26 injury that is characteristic of harm caused by sexual orientation or gender 27 identity change efforts;

1 (h) The psychological harms described in this declaration result
2 from efforts to direct a patient toward a predetermined outcome regarding 3 the patient's sexual orientation or gender identity, regardless of the nature
4 of that predetermined outcome;

5 (i) In cases involving latent injuries where there is scientific 6 consensus regarding harmfulness, Colorado law should allow plaintiffs 7 to establish causation by demonstrating that exposure to the harmful
8 conduct was, in reasonable medical probability, a substantial factor 9 contributing to the risk of developing the injury or illness, without 10 requiring proof of the precise mechanism by which the harm occurred.
11 This causation framework is appropriate for claims arising from sexual 12 orientation or gender identity change efforts, given the scientific 13 consensus regarding the harmfulness of such efforts and the latent nature 14 of the resulting psychological injuries.

15 (j) The general assembly has previously recognized, in enacting
16 Senate Bill 21-073, that survivors of sexual misconduct frequently do not 17 recognize or connect their psychological injuries to the underlying 18 conduct until well into adulthood and that an extended limitations period
19 is appropriate to account for this delayed recognition. The same 20 considerations apply to survivors of sexual orientation or gender identity 21 change efforts.

22 (k) It is the intent of the general assembly to provide individuals
23 who suffer harm as a result of sexual orientation or gender identity
24 change efforts with adequate time to seek civil remedies for the harms 25 they have suffered.

26 SECTION 2. In Colorado Revised Statutes, add 13-20-1302 as 27 follows:

1 13-20-1302. Actions based on sexual orientation or gender
2 identity change efforts - limitation - causation - damages - legislative
