CONCERNING THE IMPLEMENTATION OF THE COLORADO SECURE SAVINGS PROGRAM TO INCREASE THE AMOUNT OF RETIREMENT SAVINGS BY COLORADO'S PRIVATE SECTOR WORKERS, AND, IN CONNECTION THEREWITH, MAKING AND REDUCING AN APPROPRIATION.

Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Colorado:

SECTION 1. Legislative declaration. (1) The general assembly hereby finds and declares that:

(a) Nearly half of all families in the United States have no retirement assets. Even among those families who are nearing retirement, four out of ten have no retirement assets.

Capital letters or bold & italic numbers indicate new material added to existing law; dashes through words or numbers indicate deletions from existing law and such material is not part of the act.

(b) Middle-class, working-age families whose incomes are at the fiftieth percentile have, on average, only five thousand dollars saved in retirement accounts. The average for families with incomes at the ninetieth percentile is two hundred seventy-four thousand dollars.

(c) Most African-American and Latinx families have no retirement savings. About four out of ten African-American families and one out of four Latinx families have retirement savings. The median white family with retirement savings has over three times as much saved as the median African-American or median Latinx family.

(d) Older workers are working longer and delaying their retirement. Many of today's seniors rely on their children, who are already struggling to raise their own families, or rely on other social services that are underfunded.

(e) Over nine hundred thousand working Coloradans, or about forty percent of the Colorado workforce, do not have access to a retirement savings account or program at work;

(f) Colorado's younger workers are disproportionately affected, with forty-eight percent of workers between the age of twenty-five and twenty-nine, forty-six percent of workers between the age of thirty and thirty-four, and forty-one percent of workers between the age of thirty-five and thirty-nine, lacking access to a retirement program at work;

(g) Minority workers in Colorado are also disproportionately affected, with forty-six percent of African-American workers and fifty-nine percent of Latinx workers lacking access to a retirement program at work;

(h) Colorado's lowest wage workers are also less likely to have access to a workplace retirement savings program. Sixty-nine percent of Colorado's workers in the lowest income quintile and forty percent of Colorado's workers in the second lowest income quintile have no access to a retirement program at work.

(i) The major reason many workers do not participate in retirement savings programs is because their employers do not offer them. Experts on retirement recommend that the best way to increase retirement savings is to enroll all employees in a workplace savings program with the right to opt out. Workers are fifteen times more likely to save for retirement when they have access to an automatic enrollment savings program at work.

(j) For decades, Americans have built their retirement with traditional pensions, social security, and individual savings, but America's retirement system has not kept pace with the changing economy. Over half of Colorado workers in the private sector do not have any type of employer-sponsored retirement program, and individual savings have not filled the void.

(k) The future of Colorado's economic growth relies on our aging population having sufficient income in retirement so they can afford to live independently and have quality healthcare. Our seniors contribute significantly to local economies throughout the state, and their retirement investment spending provides stability to those communities. The cost of insufficient retirement savings to the state is estimated to be close to ten billion dollars over the next fifteen years.

(l) Colorado needs a remedy to the retirement security crisis so that Coloradans can look forward to a retirement free from financial anxiety or hardship;

(m) The Colorado general assembly created the Colorado secure savings board to study the costs of insufficient retirement savings to the state and three approaches to increasing retirement savings in Colorado: A retirement savings marketplace, an automatic enrollment IRA, and increasing financial education;

(n) The board found that a state-facilitated automatic enrollment IRA plan would be the best option for Colorado. The board further found that a retirement marketplace and similar approaches, where implemented, have not expanded retirement savings in any meaningful way. Financial education programs on their own have not demonstrated the ability to meaningfully increase savings levels.

(o) The board's study indicates that under a range of scenarios and assumptions, a state-facilitated automatic enrollment IRA plan is expected to be cost-neutral to the state within a five-year period; and

(p) Therefore, the board recommended the establishment of a state-facilitated, automatic enrollment IRA plan, coupled with the greater use of financial education tools in the state.

(2) The general assembly further finds and declares that it is in the best interest of the state to create a state-facilitated Colorado secure savings program to provide a workplace savings program for all Colorado workers whose employers do not provide such a program.
