CONCERNING FAMILY PLANNING SERVICES FOR INDIVIDUALS WHOSE INCOME DOES NOT EXCEED THE STATE'S CURRENT EFFECTIVE INCOME LEVEL FOR PREGNANT WOMEN UNDER THE CHILDREN'S BASIC HEALTH PLAN, AND, IN CONNECTION THEREWITH, MAKING AN APPROPRIATION.

Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Colorado:

SECTION 1. Legislative declaration. (1) The general assembly finds and declares that:

(a) Our communities fare better when all Coloradans can plan their pregnancies. Unintended pregnancies are associated with an increased risk of adverse pregnancy outcomes such as preterm birth, which is the leading cause of infant mortality, and delivery of low-birth-weight infants, which is linked to several negative short- and long-term health outcomes.

(b) Due to the systemic barriers they face, families who experience unintended pregnancies often have poorer health outcomes for themselves and their children, struggle to and often do not complete school, have difficulty advancing in their careers, and use more public assistance;

(c) Access to family planning services reduces the chance of unintended pregnancy, reducing the risk factors associated with poor health and social outcomes;

(d) The public health and economic crisis created by the COVID-19 pandemic has shone a bright light on the need for increased access to family planning services. Recent federal administrative rules have limited individual's access to public family planning clinics. Additionally, job losses due to the pandemic are threatening access to reproductive health care for millions of Americans.

(e) Women, particularly women of color for whom pregnancy and childbirth can be most dangerous, increasingly want to delay having children. The "Early Impacts of the COVID-19 Pandemic: 2020 Guttmacher Survey of Reproductive Health Experiences" found that overall, thirty-four percent of women reported wanting to delay pregnancy or have fewer children because of the pandemic. The same survey shows that roughly twenty-seven percent of women are worried about being able to afford contraceptives, and Hispanic women, Black women, queer women, and women living in poverty are more likely to worry about access to contraceptives than their white peers.

(f) The Colorado department of public health and environment reported that in 2019, roughly fifty-eight thousand women in Colorado were without insurance coverage for family planning services and more than twenty-one thousand of those women had low incomes that fell between the medicaid income eligibility level and two hundred fifty percent of the federal poverty level;

(g) According to a national survey conducted by the Kaiser Family Foundation and the Georgetown University Center for Children and Families, as of January 2019, twenty-eight states, not including Colorado, have received federal authorization to offer family planning services to people who are not otherwise eligible for medicaid; and

(h) The federal centers for medicare and medicaid services have encouraged states to pursue federal authorization for family planning services by covering ninety percent of the costs, a higher federal share than it provides for other medicaid services.

(2) Therefore, the general assembly finds and declares that expanding coverage through the medicaid program to provide family planning services for women with low and moderate incomes who do not otherwise qualify for medicaid coverage will reduce unintended pregnancies and help all Colorado families thrive.
