Summary of Legislation

The bill allows a custodian of public records to deny requests for records or data that include confidential personal information or employee personal e-mail addresses. The bill clarifies the provisions of the Colorado Open Records Act (CORA) permitting a custodian of public records to deny access to civil or administrative investigation records, or records related to trade secrets and other privileged or confidential information, are also applicable to the state Judicial Branch.

State Expenditures

Under current law, CORA does not typically apply to the judicial branch of government. By referencing parts of CORA applicable to the branch, workload may increase slightly for the branch to deny CORA requests. The increased workload is anticipated to be minimal and no change in appropriations is required.

Effective Date

The bill was postponed indefinitely by the House State, Veterans, and Military Affairs Committee on April 6, 2016.
