

Legislative Council Staff

Nonpartisan Services for Colorado's Legislature

Revised Fiscal Note

(replaces fiscal note dated February 16, 2021)

Drafting Number:	LLS 21-0539	Date:	April 30, 2021
Prime Sponsors:	Sen. Fenberg Rep. Garnett; Benavidez	Bill Status:	Senate Education
		Fiscal Analyst:	Josh Abram 303-866-3561 Josh.Abram@state.co.us

Bill Topic: COLORADO AMERICAN INDIAN TRIBES IN-STATE TUITION

Summary of Fiscal Impact:	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/> State Revenue	<input type="checkbox"/> TABOR Refund
	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/> State Expenditure	<input type="checkbox"/> Local Government
	<input type="checkbox"/> State Transfer	<input type="checkbox"/> Statutory Public Entity

The bill requires that institutions of higher education adopt policies to charge resident tuition to Native American students whose tribes have historical ties to Colorado. The bill reduces tuition revenue and increases state expenditures beginning FY 2021-22.

Appropriation Summary: No appropriation is required.

Fiscal Note Status: This fiscal note reflects the reengrossed bill.

Table 1
State Fiscal Impacts Under SB 21-029

		Budget Year FY 2021-22	Out Year FY 2022-23
Revenue	Institutional Revenue*	(up to $3,068,800)	(up to $3,068,800)
Expenditures		-	-
Transfers		-	-
TABOR Refund		-	-

*Institutional revenue is from student tuition to institutions of higher education.

Summary of Legislation

Beginning with the 2021-22 academic year, this bill requires that institutions of higher education adopt policies to charge in-state tuition to any Native American student who is a registered member of a federally recognized American Indian tribe with historical ties to Colorado. Students classified for resident tuition are eligible for participation in the College Opportunity Fund (COF), and may be eligible for certain financial aid. The bill applies to all state institutions of higher education except Fort Lewis College, which already provides free tuition for any Native American.

Background

According to the Colorado Commission on Indian Affairs and History Colorado, 48 federally recognized American Indian tribes have historical ties to Colorado. Almost every state-supported institution of higher education enrolls Native American students who are residents of other states and pay non-resident tuition in Colorado. The Department of Higher Education estimates that between 2016 and 2020, an average of 200 nonresident students self-identify as Native American. It is unknown how many of these students are also members of tribes with historical ties to Colorado.

State Revenue

The bill both increases and decreases tuition revenue for institutions of higher education. The bill decreases revenue from tuition by reclassifying current nonresident students as resident students, and reducing the amount of tuition those students will be required to pay. The bill increases revenue from tuition for each new Native American student who chooses to enroll in Colorado's higher education system who would not have otherwise chosen to do so. State tuition revenue to institutions of higher education is exempt from TABOR.

Tuition decrease. The bill reduces revenue from tuition for state institutions of higher education by up to $3.0 million beginning with the 2021-22 academic year. Nonresident students in Colorado pay a tuition rate higher than the amount charged to residents; reclassifying these students as residents reduces tuition revenue by the difference between the two rates. For the 2020-21 academic year, the average tuition for a full time resident student at a four year school is $8,884, and the average nonresident student tuition is $24,288, for a tuition difference of $15,344. If 200 native students system wide are reclassified from nonresident to resident, the loss in tuition revenue is $3,068,800.

Tuition increase. The reduction in tuition revenue will be partially offset by increased tuition revenue for each new student who, as a result of a reduced price, chooses to enroll in a Colorado school. Since the decision to attend higher education cannot be predicted based only on cost, no estimate is provided for the number of students likely to choose Colorado as a result of the bill.

State Expenditures

This bill increases the number of students eligible for the College Opportunity Fund beginning in FY 2021-22. In the current FY 2020-21, the COF stipend is $40 per credit hour, or $1,200 for 30 credit hours. The COF stipend for FY 2021-22 has not been set. Under current law, changes to the number of students who qualify for COF stipends does not change the total state funding that must be provided to institutions of higher education. Therefore, the bill does not require a General Fund appropriation for additional COF stipends.

Effective Date

The bill takes effect upon signature of the Governor, or upon becoming law without his signature.

State and Local Government Contacts

Higher Education