Appropriation Summary: No appropriation is required.

Fiscal Note Status: The fiscal note reflects the enacted bill.

Summary of Legislation

The Foster Youth in Transition Program was established in 2021 to serve foster youth ages 18 to 21. The program requires county departments of human or social services to provide services to eligible youth on a voluntary basis with oversight from the Department of Human Services (DHS). This bill makes various technical and clarifying changes to the program, including:

- defining “dependent on the court” as being a youth under the juvenile court’s jurisdiction;
- directing the court to advise youth on their rights to program services;
- repealing certain provisions related to continuing jurisdiction by the court over youth in out-of-home placement;
- adding program requirements for juveniles or youth who were in a dependency and neglect case;
- making changes to program service requirements related to youth housing and living expenses;
- modifying minimum requirements for voluntary services agreements between county departments of human or social services and youth participating in the program;
- modifying filing options and clarifying what information is required to be included in the petition that youth file to enter the program; and
- adding language and requirements concerning the program’s initial hearing.

State Expenditures

The bill increases workload in the DHS in FY 2022-23 only, and increases workload in the Judicial Department on an ongoing basis. These impacts are described below.

Department of Human Services. Workload will increase in the DHS to update policies and training materials related to the Foster Youth in Transition Program, and to share these with local departments of human or social services and other partners. These costs are absorbable within existing appropriations.

Judicial Department. The bill increases workload by a minimal amount in the Judicial Department. The bill may increase hearing time in the trial courts for youth requiring advisement about Foster Youth in Transition Program services, and for youth who are eligible for Special Immigrant Juvenile Status by requiring additional testimony and findings. It may also increase court staff workload for appointment of new counsel to youth in the program and setting additional reviews. Given the relatively small number of cases involved, additional workload for trial courts and court staff is absorbable within existing appropriations.

Local Government

In FY 2022-23, workload will increase for local departments of human or social services to update their policies and training materials to reflect changes to the Foster Youth in Transition Program.

Effective Date

The bill was signed into law by the Governor on April 12, 2022, and takes effect on August 9, 2022, assuming no referendum petition is filed.
