(evaluator) to evaluate and report to the court concerning disputed issues relating to the parental responsibilities allocation. The bill:

- Prohibits investigators and evaluators from including information based on theories that are not evidence-based or peer-reviewed in a report to the court, but requires investigators and evaluators to provide options for the court to consider;
- Requires investigators and evaluators to adhere to certain interviewing and forensic reporting standards;
- Requires investigators and evaluators to provide certain written disclosures to each party before performing duties;
- Allows the court to implement caps on charges for duties performed by evaluators;
- Requires investigators and evaluators to include all information obtained concerning domestic violence and child abuse; and
- Amends training requirements for investigators and evaluators.

In all proceedings, a child or youth must have the opportunity to be heard without a parent present and have their opinion considered and entered into the record, either through an investigator's or evaluator's report or to the court through parental responsibilities allocation proceedings by letter or in the judge's chambers if the child or youth is of sufficient age and maturity and able to express an opinion.

The court is prohibited from considering information based on theories that are not evidence-based or peer-reviewed in determining the best interests of the child or youth when determining parenting time.

The bill defines "coercive control".

The bill requires that if allegations of domestic violence, child abuse or neglect, or child sexual abuse have been made, a child or youth must not be forced into an allocation of parental responsibilities arrangement, and the court is required to give strong consideration to the child's or youth's preference, if the preference is consistent with protecting the child's or youth's safety.

The bill clarifies that, pursuant to a chief justice directive, the office of the state court administrator is authorized to accept complaints regarding investigators and evaluators, and administer appropriate sanctions.

The office of the state court administrator shall publish information on its website regarding judges and magistrates who complete domestic violence and child abuse training.

1 SECTION 1. Legislative declaration. (1) The general assembly
2 finds that:

3 (a) The general assembly, along with other state legislatures, the 4 United States congress, and the United Nations, has identified that family 5 court reform is necessary to prevent the common occurrence of awarding 6 parental responsibilities for minor children to perpetrators of violence,
7 including perpetrators of intimate partner violence, child abuse, and child 8 sexual abuse;

9 (b) United Nations experts have described the issue of protecting 10 victims of abuse in custody disputes, particularly women and children, as 11 an international crisis;

12 (c) Recently, the general assembly passed House Bill 21-1228 and 13 House Bill 23-1178. Among other things, these bills require certain court 14 personnel who are involved in parental responsibility proceedings to 15 complete training with evidence-based and peer-reviewed curricula in 16 domestic violence, child abuse, and child sexual abuse. The bills also 17 require court findings related to domestic violence, child abuse, and child 18 sexual abuse when determining parental responsibilities, and they require 19 certain court-appointed expert witnesses in parental responsibilities 20 proceedings to have appropriate qualifications. Finally, the bills limit the 21 use of reunification treatment when a claim of domestic violence, child 22 abuse, or child sexual abuse has been made, and they conform with the 23 provisions of the federal "Keeping Children Safe from Family Violence 24 Act", or "Kayden's Law". Additional clarification and protections for 25 children and former partners are needed to build upon House Bill 21-1228
26 and House Bill 23-1178.

27 (d) Additionally, the general assembly recently passed House Bill

1 23-1108. The bill addressed the important and difficult work of child and 2 family investigators and parental responsibilities evaluators and their 3 roles in making courts safer and more accessible for domestic violence
4 survivors. It is imperative that judges understand the work of these critical 5 court personnel and both the positive effect or the negative consequences
6 it may have depending upon training. The recommendations made by the 7 task force to study victim and survivor awareness and responsiveness
8 training requirements for judicial personnel, created pursuant to House
9 Bill 23-1108, recognized the need to expand expertise and knowledge
10 regarding the effect of domestic violence exposure on children, power 11 dynamics following partner separation, the reliability of information 12 presented to the court, and the role of the court in protecting children.
13 Implementing these recommendations is critical to help judges work
14 effectively with child and family investigators and parental
15 responsibilities evaluators to improve support of domestic violence
16 survivors.

17 (2) (a) Therefore, the general assembly declares it is necessary to 18 expand opportunities to ensure a child's opinions are entered into the 19 record and considered by the court when determining parental 20 responsibilities, to consider coercive control by perpetrators of violence, 21 and to clarify and expand the state's role and responsibilities to ensure 22 these standards are upheld.

23 (b) Furthermore, the general assembly declares that it is 24 encouraged by the recommendations made by the task force to study
25 victim and survivor awareness and responsiveness training requirements 26 for judicial personnel, created pursuant to House Bill 23-1108. The 27 general assembly looks forward to the judicial department's

1 implementation of these recommendations, including actions necessary
2 to comply with the federal "Keeping Children Safe from Family Violence
3 Act", or "Kayden's Law".
