nonprofit full-time employees after 10 years of qualifying service, but in 2023 the federal government made contractors who perform work for a government agency eligible for the program if the work cannot be performed by a government employee. Three independent judicial agencies, the office of the alternative defense counsel, the office of the child's representative, and the office of respondent parents' counsel (agencies) primarily use contractors to provide legal representation on behalf of the agencies because providing the same services through state employees would create ethical conflicts.

To enable these contractors to qualify for the program if they otherwise meet program requirements, the bill:

- Clarifies that state employees cannot provide the legal services that the independent contractors provide;
- Allows the agencies to certify that a contractor appears to be eligible for the program; and
- Because some contractors provide or have provided legal services on behalf of more than one of the agencies, authorizes the agencies to share contractor information to the extent necessary to certify a contractor's eligibility for the program.

1 Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Colorado:

2 SECTION 1. Legislative declaration. (1) The general assembly
3 finds and declares that:

4 (a) Three independent judicial agencies, the office of the 5 alternative defense counsel, the office of the child's representative, and 6 the office of respondent parents' counsel, primarily use independent 7 contractors to provide legal representation as required by state law
8 because providing the same services through government employees
9 would be impracticable due to the ethical conflicts that such employment 10 would create;

11 (b) Providing legal representation through independent contractors
12 is a common model to address such conflicts;

13 (c) In 2007, Congress created the public service loan forgiveness
14 program to allow government and nonprofit full-time employees to have

1 their federal student loans forgiven after ten years of qualifying service, 2 but, unfortunately, independent contractors who provide crucial legal 3 representation through contracts with government agencies were not 4 eligible for the program;

5 (d) In 2023, the federal government changed the requirements for 6 the program to make an independent contractor eligible for public service 7 loan forgiveness if the work that the independent contractor performs for 8 a government agency cannot be performed by a government employee;

9 (e) Providing opportunities for independent contractors who 10 provide legal services on behalf of independent judicial agencies to be 11 eligible for the same federal public service loan forgiveness that would 12 be available for government employees performing similar work will 13 improve recruitment and retention for crucial public service legal work
14 and provide important financial benefits to Colorado residents and small 15 business owners;

16 (f) Each year, these three independent judicial agencies lose 17 highly qualified and trained contractors to full-time government or 18 nonprofit jobs because these contractors want to be eligible for public 19 service loan forgiveness, and this turnover is costly for the state and 20 detrimental to clients; and

21 (g) Nothing in this act is intended to alter eligibility for state or 22 local loan forgiveness, and the federal government will continue to be 23 ultimately responsible for determining eligibility for federal public 24 service loan forgiveness.

25 (2) The general assembly therefore declares that it is in the best 26 interests of the state, the legal profession, and the people served by 27 independent judicial agencies to clarify that independent contractors who

1 provide legal services on behalf of independent judicial agencies can be 2 eligible for federal public service loan forgiveness.
