

Inside a Bill:

A breakdown of statutory numbering, shading and underlining in bills, and the names of the different bill versions.

Post-Introduction formatting: What the shading and double underlining means

- When a bill is amended by the House (in committee or on 2nd or 3rd reading), the amended language is indicated by shading (also called "highlighting")

- When a bill is amended by the Senate (in committee or on 2nd or 3rd reading), the amended language is indicated by double underlining

Official versions of bills: (Applicable regardless of whether bill is amended)

Printed: Bill as it was introduced; no committee or floor action; The language is the same as when it left OLLS.

Engrossed: Bill has been referred out of committee(s) and passed 2nd reading (chamber of origin).

Reengrossed: Bill has passed 3rd reading (chamber of origin); This is how the bill will be introduced in the opposite chamber.

Revised: Bill has been referred out of committee(s) and passed 2nd reading (opposite chamber).

Rerevised: Bill has passed 3rd reading (opposite chamber).

Enrolled: Conference committee report (if any) has been adopted by both chambers; bill signed by Speaker and President; transmitted to Governor for consideration.

Final Act: Enrolled bill that became law either with or without signature of Governor.
