

BALANCED REFORM

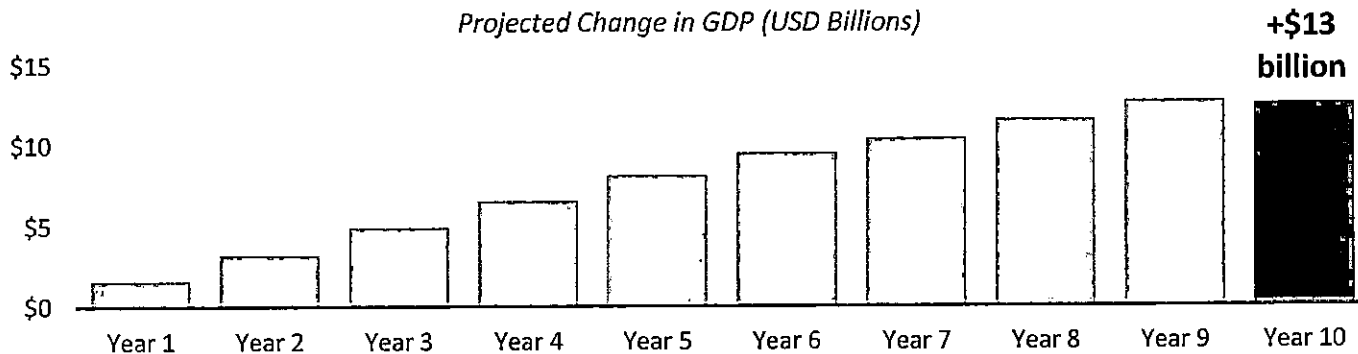

Colorado

A balanced approach to immigration reform emphasizes strong border security and employment verification, while also streamlining and expanding the existing high-skilled (H-1B), low-skilled (H-2A) and green card visa programs and establishing a new H-2C category to help businesses expand. It promises to grow Colorado's economy, create more than one hundred thousand new jobs and increase the incomes of Colorado households.

The Impact on Colorado's Economy

Projected Change in GDP (USD Billions)

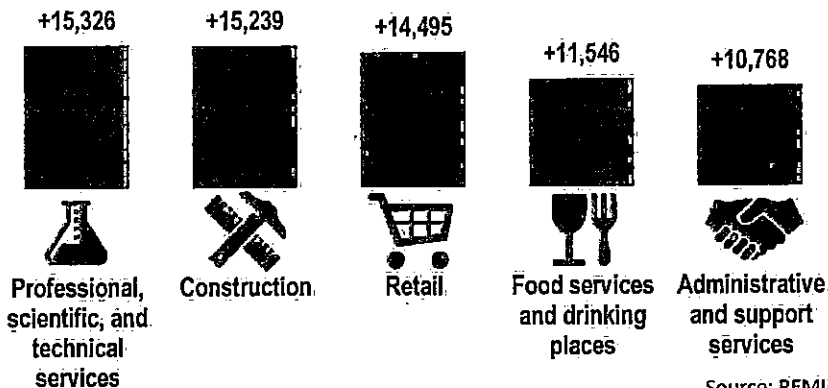

Source: REMI, Inc.

Industries with Largest Job Gains

132,845

Jobs Created
Statewide
Over the Next 10 Years

Source: REMI, Inc.

$243

Income gain for the median household in Colorado in the first year after implementation.

Source: REMI, Inc.

Balanced immigration reform means improved border security and more economic opportunity for Colorado.

ENFORCEMENT ONLY

Colorado

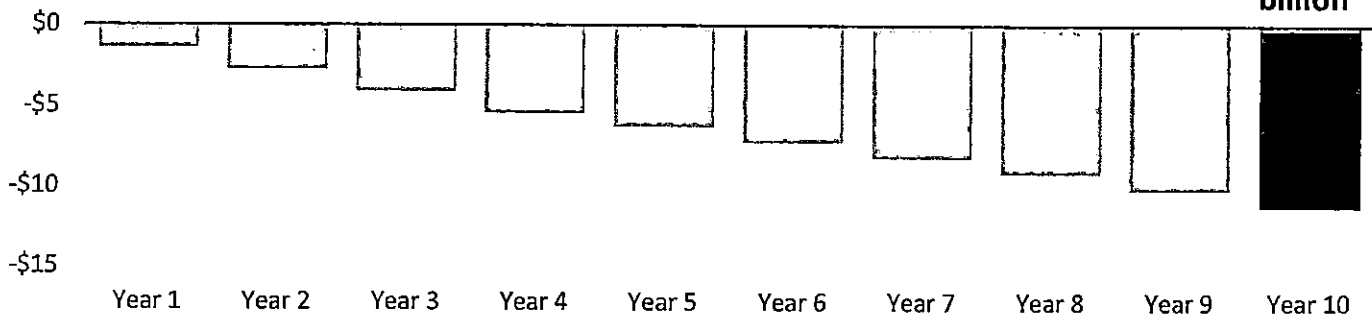

An enforcement-only approach to immigration reform centers on aggressive border security measures and the removal of most undocumented residents. Such an approach would cost Colorado billions in gross domestic product (GDP), eliminate more than one hundred thousand jobs statewide and lower the incomes of Colorado households.

The Impact on Colorado's Economy

Projected Change in GDP (USD Billions)

-$11 billion

Source: REMI, Inc.

Industries with Largest Job Losses

125,460

Jobs Lost Statewide Over the Next 10 Years

Source: REMI, Inc.

$180

Income loss for the median Colorado household in the first year after implementation.

Source: REMI, Inc.

"Enforcement only" addresses one side of the immigration equation, but it does not account for the contributions that millions of immigrant workers provide to the U.S. economy and Colorado residents.