CONCERNING MEASURES TO IMPROVE OUTCOMES FOR YOUNG CHILDREN BY REPLACING JUSTICE INVOLVEMENT WITH COMMUNITY-BASED SERVICES, AND, IN CONNECTION THEREWITH, MAKING AN APPROPRIATION.

Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Colorado:

SECTION 1. Legislative declaration. (1) The general assembly finds and declares that:

(a) Providing developmentally appropriate services to young children to address the underlying causes of problematic behaviors prevents future youth misbehavior, thereby reducing recidivism in both adolescence and adulthood, which leads to safer communities;

(b) Behavioral health programs, schools, child welfare services, and other community-based programs and services are better equipped than the juvenile justice system to identify and address the needs of young children and to provide developmentally appropriate services to improve community safety and reduce the risk that young children commit future crimes as adults;

(c) Ensuring that community-based programs outside of the juvenile justice system are funded to serve young children at risk of involvement with the juvenile justice system, or who are currently facing delinquency charges, reduces the negative impacts for young children and their communities;

(d) Colorado has an existing system of local collaborative management programs that can be improved to ensure young children receive appropriate services outside of the juvenile justice system, which will improve outcomes for young children and make communities safer;

(e) Serving young children through local collaborative management programs reduces future victimization. Young children in the juvenile justice system are at a higher risk of becoming victims of violence within the justice system.

(f) A community-based alternative to serve young children is more equitable. Young children of color are more likely to be referred to the juvenile justice system and detained in juvenile justice facilities than White young children.

(g) Additional data collection regarding how children are currently served inside and outside the juvenile justice system is necessary to ensure community-based programs outside the juvenile justice system continue to effectively serve children.

(2) Therefore, the general assembly declares its intent to empower community-based responses in the health, education, and child welfare systems to serve children, including children who are under thirteen years of age, instead of the juvenile justice system.
