building occupants and another portion of the exemption requires that interior designers engage in their work "with due concern for the life safety of the occupants of the building". The bill removes the language of the first portion and retains the language of the second portion of the exemption.

The bill authorizes a city, city and county, or regional building authority to reject a building permit application filed by an interior designer only for a reason provided by law.

The bill also modifies the eligibility criteria for interior designers by removing references to educational requirements. The national certification requirement that is maintained in the statute itself includes educational requirements.

Finally, the bill modifies the description of "nonstructural or nonseismic" work that is within an interior designer's scope of practice.
