services for youth to respond to identified mental health needs, including those needs that may have resulted from the COVID-19 pandemic. The program reimburses providers for up to 3 mental health sessions with a youth and may provide additional reimbursement subject to available money.

As soon as practicable, but no later than May 31, 2021, the department of human services is required to enter into an agreement with a vendor to create, or use an existing, website or web-based application as a portal available to youth and providers to facilitate the program.

The program is repealed, effective June 30, 2022.

The bill makes an appropriation.

1 Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Colorado:

2 SECTION 1. Legislative declaration. (1) The general assembly
3 finds and declares that:

4 (a) The COVID-19 pandemic has put extraordinary stress on all
5 Coloradans, including young Coloradans who have experienced 6 enormous disruptions to school, social activities, and support networks, 7 resulting in increased isolation and, in many cases, new or exacerbated 8 instability, particularly as a result of a parent's loss of employment or 9 stable housing. Even before the pandemic, Colorado ranked in the bottom 10 half of states for prevalence of mental illness and access to care. In 2018,
11 Colorado had the seventh highest suicide rate in the nation, and suicide
12 is the leading cause of death among Colorado youth.

13 (b) Since the pandemic began, the Colorado crisis services hotline
14 has experienced a thirty percent increase in calls and texts, and Children's 15 Hospital Colorado has seen a ten percent increase in the number of kids 16 who visit the psychiatric emergency department due to thoughts of 17 suicide. As experts sound alarms about the state of youth mental health, 18 both now and looking into the future, the general assembly recognizes 19 that recovery from the pandemic will depend on youth having access to

1 mental health support, regardless of their ability to pay for it.

2 (c) For years, Colorado schools have been fundamentally 3 rethinking school safety by centering on the social, emotional, and mental 4 health needs of young people. In 2020 and 2021, teachers and school
5 counselors faced unprecedented burdens. As Colorado transitions beyond 6 the COVID-19 pandemic, the state's youth need the support of their 7 parents, families, communities, and mental health professionals beyond 8 school walls to address the pain, trauma, and loneliness they are 9 experiencing.

10 (d) Colorado's behavioral health blueprint identifies care 11 coordination as a significant challenge for many Coloradans. Providing 12 mental health sessions free of charge to youth across the state can help 13 break down barriers to access and create a sustainable community of care
14 and long-lasting relationships between youth and mental health
15 professionals.

16 (e) Recognizing disparities in access to mental health care by race, 17 neurodiversity, and geography, the general assembly finds it is essential 18 for mental health services programs to actively seek out providers who 19 reflect the diversity of Colorado's youth and for communities to help raise 20 awareness and disseminate information about mental health services, 21 especially to marginalized youth.

22 (2) Therefore, the general assembly declares that immediate action
23 is necessary to support the mental health of all Colorado youth by 24 facilitating access to a mental health screening and providing mental 25 health sessions free of charge to youth in order to respond to identified 26 mental health needs. In doing so, Colorado can build back stronger from 27 the pandemic and get closer to achieving the state's long-term behavioral

1 health reform goals.

3 follows:
